Greetings, PAPOR members! I hope you are enjoying your spring.

PAPOR Council has been hard at work on a number of different initiatives these past few months, with a main focus on increasing student participation and involvement in all of our events and activities.

1. 2023 PAPOR Annual Conference:

This year we’re excited to share that we’ll be holding a summer conference, in Seattle, at University of Washington! Accordingly, submissions for the 2023 Annual Conference of the Pacific Chapter of the American Association for Public Opinion Research are now open. Our conference theme will be “Hearing Every Voice,” and PAPOR enthusiastically welcomes submissions for presentations on any topic related to public opinion research, theory, or methodology. We encourage participation from all sectors engaged in public opinion research, including academia, government, private sector, and nonprofits. In particular, we would love for current students to present research they might be working on. Read more about the conference on pages 2 and 3.

2. Executive Council Volunteering Benefits:

Last year, we increased the conference travel award for our annual student paper competition to those who have graduated within the past two years. This year PAPOR is also discussing additional benefits to encourage young professionals to step into leadership roles on Council. If you have any suggestions, please email Council@papor.org.

3. Local Events:

We know the expense of traveling can be tough. We want to find ways for PAPOR members to connect locally. Please fill out this interest form and we will do our best to facilitate local connections with other PAPOR members.

4. Conduct Policy:

Recently AAPOR updated their Conduct Policy. Membership has voted on the 2023-2024 AAPOR Executive Council, and adopted the new policy. PAPOR is now adapting this policy to cover PAPOR membership. Watch for updates in our summer newsletter.

Thank you once again to our volunteer Council and our amazing sponsors!

The Winter 2023 PAPOR Speaker Series: Profiles in Research session was a moving event that featured three remarkable speakers sharing their life experiences, and the lessons they have learned through their careers. Carol Davis, Susan Pinkus, and Patti Fries, each shared insightful anecdotes about their personal journeys, which provided valuable lessons for researchers of all levels.

My personal highlight of the event was Carol Davis, who is not only an experienced researcher, but also my mom. She shared how her life was shaped by taking calculated risks, and leaps of faith as she founded Davis Research in 1970. It was also interesting to learn about her ‘life after retirement’ story and how she used the skills she learned in business to volunteer in the local community. The best part was that she did this without any ‘When Bob was a baby’ stories.

Patti Fries started with a story about her 13 year old self at a middle school dance and how she learned the important lesson that we should take every opportunity to make each day memorable. It was great to hear how her career had 3 distinct phases – one in advertising testing, one starting up and running the insights department at Dish Networks, and one as the president of the research firm ROI Rocket.

Susan Pinkus shared her journey from being a marketing professional in New York to a polling professional in Los Angeles, both at the LA Times and on her own. She emphasized the importance of perseverance and the need to stay committed to one’s passions in order to achieve success.

The event was a valuable reminder that research is not just about data, but about the people behind it and the relationships/friendships you make along the way. The lessons shared by these three inspiring women can serve as a guide to anyone looking to succeed. More information on The PAPOR Speaker Series: Profiles in Research, including a recording of the session, can be found on our website. —Written by Bob Davis
